

Cool stay of the week: a couple's bolthole on the Norfolk coast

Head to this Scandi-style escape for a weekend by the seaside

LAURA HAMPSON | Wednesday 21 August 2019 15:05 | 0 comments

The Little Stables, Norfolk - in pictures

14
show all

Whether you're new parents or need time away just for the two of you, this Norfolk home is the perfect coastal escape.

This week's Cool Stay of the Week, The Little Stables, sits surrounded by fields near the village of Aldborough around 20 miles from Norwich.

Baby and dog friendly, The Little Stables has its own enclosed garden, perfect for enjoying coffee in the morning or a glass of wine in the evening. Inside, you have a well-equipped kitchen and dining area beneath wooden beams, complete with an oven, hob, fridge and microwave. You'll also find a cosy lounge, double bedroom and smart shower room inside.

The local shop in Aldborough is around a mile away, along with some village pubs to enjoy a meal out. If beaches are more your scene, you'll find a lengthy stretch of coast nearby in Brancaster and you're also in easy reach of the Norfolk Broads.

Norwich, where attractions range from the cathedral and castle to the Art Deco Theatre Royal and Sainsbury Centre for Visual Arts, is a 40-minute drive away and you're situated among a cluster of beautiful villages.

(CoolStays)

Burnham Market, said to be Norfolk's loveliest village, is close by and here you can discover its array of independent shops, great restaurants and cafés. Holt is also worth a trip with lots of lovely little tea shops, boutiques, pubs, food hall and antique shops.

Where: Thurgarton, Norfolk

Sleeps: two plus a baby.

Price: £80 to £100 per night.

To book: coolstays.com/the-little-stables ■

More about: | coolstayoftheweek | CoolStays | Cool Stay of the week | Norfolk | Staycation | Travel 2019